Preferred Citation note

Milo Todd Letter, W.S. Hoole Special Collections Library, The University of Alabama.
Biographical/Historical note

In 1857, Milo Todd was a resident of Northford, Connecticut.

Scope and Contents note

The collection contains a letter from Milo Todd of Northford, Connecticut, to his friend, John Douglass Fowler of Bristol, Wisconsin, telling him about the wet weather and crop expectations. He also mentions a comet that was predicted to hit the earth and the alarm that resulted from the 'end-of-the-world' prophecies. Todd expresses his temporary "Western Fever" and interest in leaving Connecticut.
