

The 2009 Rose Gladney Lecture for Justice & Social Change with Alicia Schmidt Camacho

Join us for the annual Rose Gladney Lecture for Justice and Social Change with Dr. Alicia Schmidt Camacho, the Sarai Ribicoff Associate Professor of American Studies at Yale University.

Alicia Schmidt Camacho is Sarai Ribicoff Associate Professor of American Studies and Ethnicity, Race at Migration, and the Associate Master for Ezra Stiles College. Her scholarship concerns the femicide in Ciudad Juárez, transnational migration, border governance, and social movements in the Americas. She is the author of Migrant Imaginaries: Latino Cultural Politics in the Mexico–U.S. Borderlands (NYU Press, 2008), and is currently at work on a second book project entitled, The Carceral Border: Social Violence and Governmentality on the Frontiers of Our America. She serves on the board of Junta for Progressive Action, a community agency serving the Latina/o community of Fair Haven, and is a contributor to local and transnational projects for immigrant and human rights. A reception and book signing will follow.

Her lecture is entitled “Migrant Suffering & the Event Without Witness”

Her talk will examine the range of state sanctioned and criminal violence targeting undocumented Central Americans and Mexicans within the North American migratory circuit.

7:30 pm on Thursday, October 15, 2009

Gorgas Library Room 205

Co-sponsored by the Dept. of American Studies, UA Libraries, the College of Arts & Sciences and the Diversity Committee of the College of Arts & Sciences, Honor's College, New College, Departments of Religious Studies and Women's Studies, and the African American Studies Program.

Part of the University-wide Hispanic-Latino Heritage Month Celebration.

Visit www.lib.ua.edu/events for information on all University Libraries events or contact Jessica Lacher-Feldman at libevents@ua.edu or 205.348.0500

A reception will follow Dr. Schmidt Camacho's talk. This event is free and open to the public.