MISSION

The University of Alabama Libraries are essential in advancing the educational mission of the University. We provide innovative instruction, services, and resources to facilitate teaching, research, and learning. The University of Alabama Libraries are committed to be student-centered and research-focused in order to support discovery, learning, and creativity at the Capstone.

VISION

We envision a future in which faculty and students have in-depth awareness of the resources available, skills to evaluate them, and a desire to pursue life-long learning.

VALUES

- Providing excellent services and learning experiences for all members of the University community while promoting collaboration.
- Openness to diverse voices and perspectives for exchanging information and ideas.
- Access to comprehensive scholarly information resources that support campus curricula and contribute to the impact of the research life cycle. improvement of our practices with a culture of accountability.
- Training and technology that support innovation and entrepreneurship.

Innovative Instruction

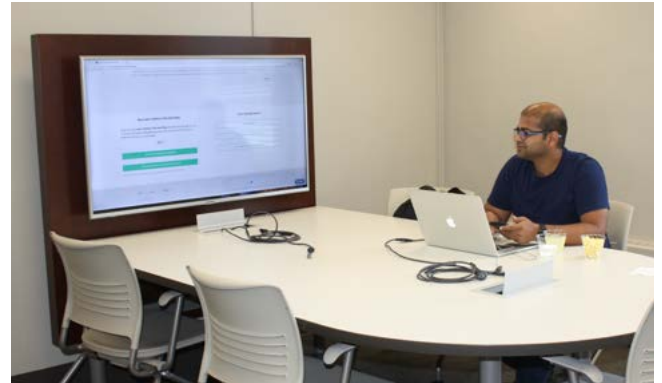

University Libraries partners across the disciplines to deliver innovative instruction that empowers students to engage with, integrate, create, and transform knowledge through the use of library resources and collections.

Our instruction through face-to-face sessions with a librarian or by online tutorials are designed to help students achieve a solid foundation of research skills required to complete assignments thus achieving a successful academic experience.

NEW SERVICES

OnLine Booking System Introduced

University Libraries offers Group Study Rooms at four of its five branch locations. Study rooms support academic work by students working on group projects or studying together. Due to the popularity of these rooms, an online reservation booking system was created for students to reserve rooms in advance.

UA Mobile Print

Faculty, staff, and students can now work on documents from any computer off- or on-campus and email their files to printing stations in Gorgas, Rodgers, Bruno, and McLure libraries.

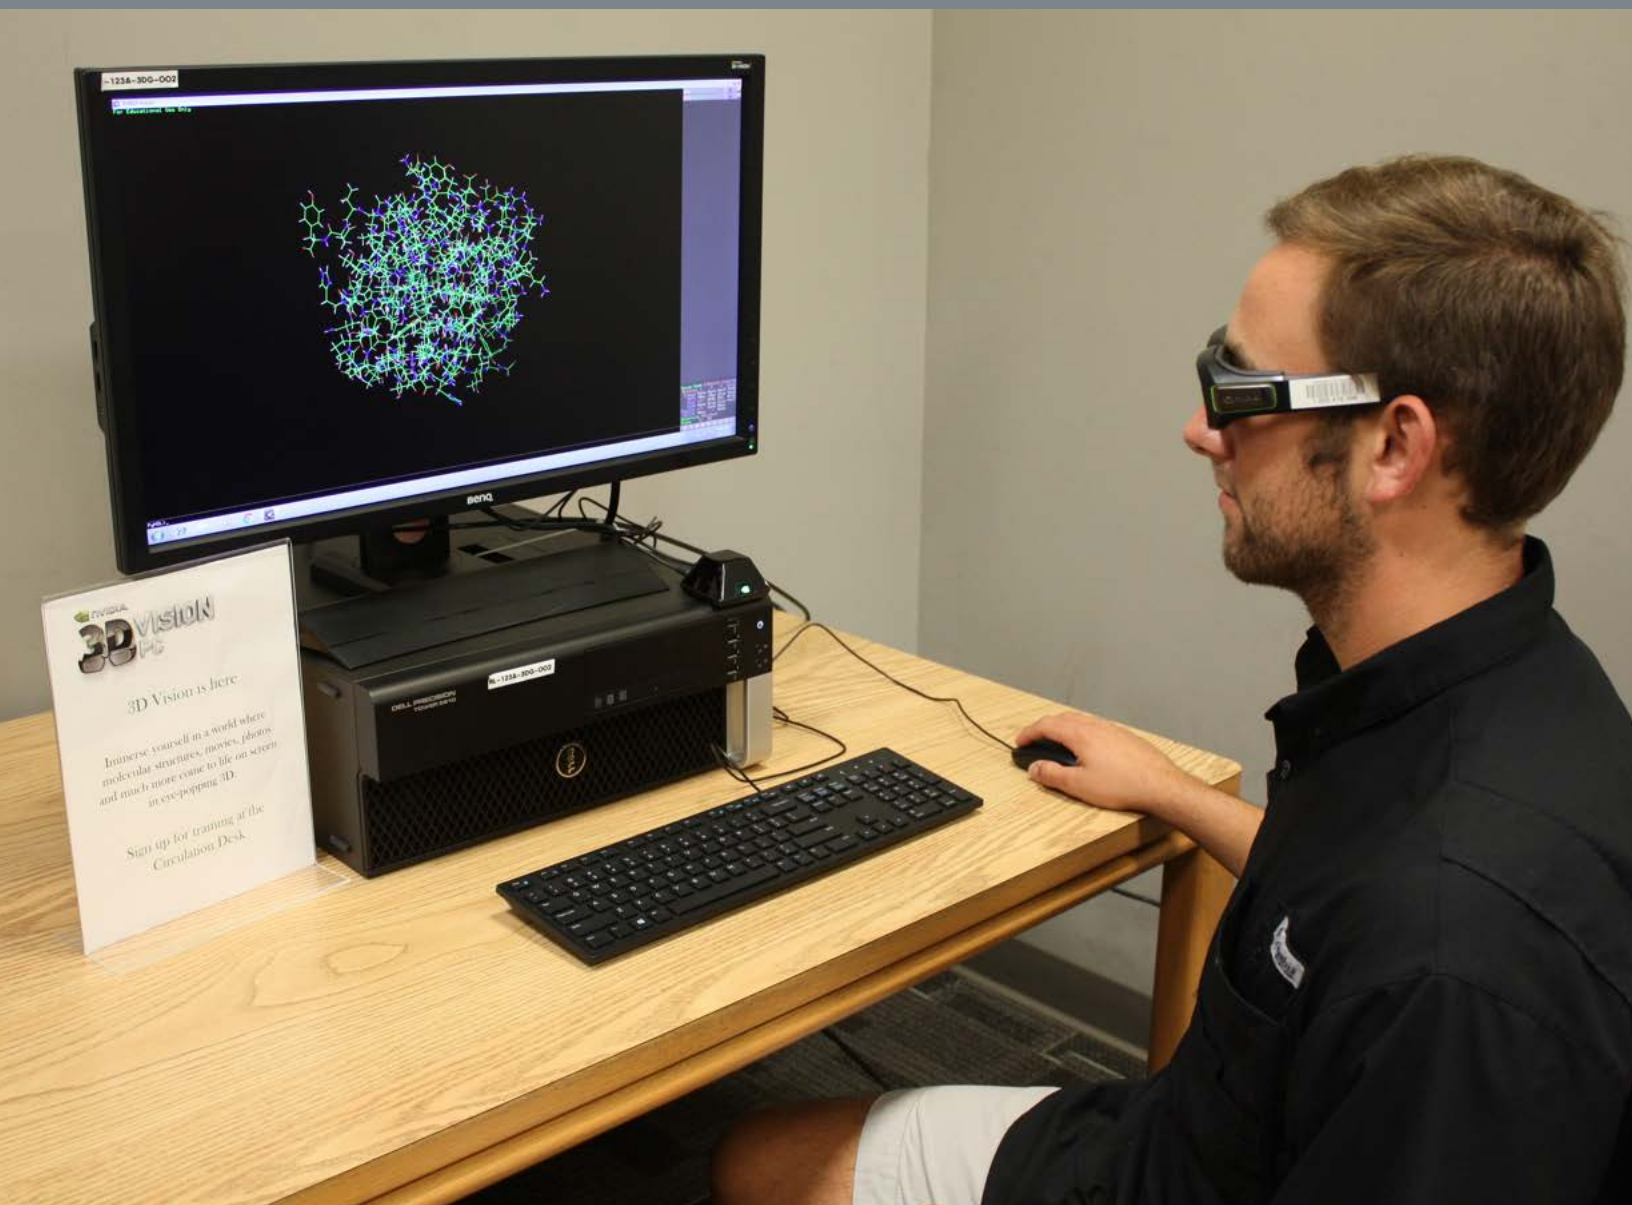

3D Steroscopic

In February, Rodgers Library for Science and Engineering added 3D Stereoscopic Vision technology into the Rodgers Library 3D Studio. 3D Stereoscopic vision allows users to view images and videos in three dimension through the use of wireless glasses, 3D monitors, and specialized software. With 3D Stereoscopy, students can view a variety of complex 3D geometries such as molecular structures, fossils, and art sculpture.

There are currently two 3D Stereoscopy workstations with six pairs of 3D vision glasses. The 3D Studio also maintains two Stratasys UPrint SE 3D printers and one Next Engine 3D Scanner. Students can use the 3D printing and scanning equipment to create tangible objects such as robot parts, laboratory equipment, and fashion objects.

Training for all 3D Studio equipment is available to students and faculty throughout the year in Rodgers Library. This leading-edge technology is just one example of how University Libraries provides the tools our students need to prepare them for a successful career.

239 TRAINED USERS • 1275 3D PRINTED OBJECTS

NEW RESOURCES

Academic Software

University Libraries provides 154 software packages for students and faculty research. These packages are available on the 521 computers located in all of our library locations. Our programs are consistently evaluated and updated to anticipate opportunities and future needs for successful projects and class assignments.

Microsoft Visio 2016

is used to create flowcharts, network diagrams, organizational charts, floor plans, and engineering designs.

R Studio is an integrated development environment (IDE) for R statistical software.

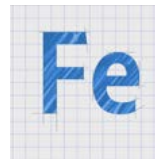

RISA-3D is a general 3D analysis/design software popular among structural engineers.

AutoCad Map 3D

AutoCad Map 3D is software that provides access to GIS and mapping data to support planning, design, and data management.

Project Felix

Project Felix creates high-quality, photorealistic images. Project Felix makes it easy to composite 2D and 3D assets to build product shots, scene visualizations, and abstract art. And it's made for graphic designers, not 3D experts.

NEW ELECTRONIC DATABASES

Students and faculty can access 589 electronic databases from any computer, on- or off-campus, by logging in with their UA password. Our students and faculty have information at their fingertips wherever they are studying. This valuable resource affords our students and faculty the opportunity to achieve their highest potential.

Index of Medieval Art

The Index records works of art produced throughout the "Long Middle Ages," from early apostolic times until the sixteenth century in seventeen different media.

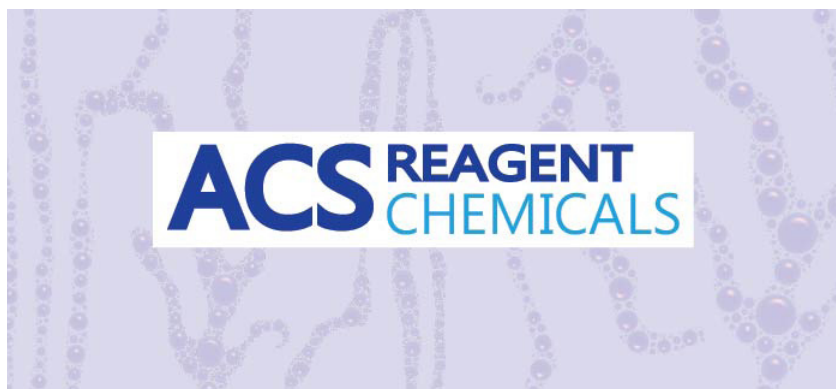

Samuel Beckett Digital Manuscript Project

The purpose of the Beckett Digital Manuscript Project is to reunite the manuscripts of Samuel Beckett's works in a digital way and to facilitate genetic research.

E & E News

E&E News is a news organization focusing on energy and the environment. With more than 75 reporters and editors, E&E offers an in-depth look at energy and environment issues in Washington, D.C., and around the nation. E&E has bureaus in Houston, Dallas/Ft. Worth, Denver, New York City, Seattle, Atlanta, St. Louis, Minneapolis, San Francisco and Los Angeles. E&E reporters also regularly travel around the world to report on key events and projects with global consequences for energy and the environment.

ACS Reagent Chemicals Online

ACS Reagent Chemicals provides general physical properties and analytical uses for all reagent chemicals as well as guidelines for standard analytical methods.

Choice Reviews

Choice Reviews is a searchable database containing almost 200,000 reviews of academic titles ranging over the past 28 years.

Outreach

Week of Welcome – University Libraries Ice Cream Social

Each fall, University Libraries welcomes students back to campus with a fun event to introduce them to our faculty and staff and to familiarize them with our services and resources. Last August, the Libraries hosted an Ice Cream Social; perfect for a hot summer day.

Great Campus Write-In

University Libraries and the Campus Writing Center partner each fall and spring to sponsor writing workshops for our undergraduate and graduate students. The marathon writing event offers an opportunity for students to work through the writing process with tutors and librarians providing research support. The writing workshops affords our students with skills and knowledge assisting them to achieve their greatest potential.

Publishing Workshop

To assist our graduate students learn more about the publishing process, University Libraries and the Graduate Student Association sponsored a publishing forum in April. Topics included personal experiences publishing journal articles and books, popular literature research and management tools, tips for selecting a publisher and preparing articles for submission, and what reviewers and editors are looking for during the submission and revision process.

Boys State

Alabama Boys State is one of the highest honors granted to Alabama students. Students from across the state are chosen based on their demonstration of leadership, hard work, strong morals, and motivation in school and community activities. Boys State Week is a full and active week held on the campus of The University of Alabama.

University Libraries assisted both Boys State and Girls State with resources, computers, printers, and personal assistance to support their assignments.

Library Expo 2016

University Libraries and a team of library vendors joined forces last fall to sponsor the Library Expo in the Ferguson Student Center Commons. Vendor representatives were on hand to explain their products and how students could use these databases in their class assignments, projects, and for pleasure. Faculty and students were able to interact with Library faculty and staff learning more about library resources, services, and specific research related products. The Expo provides an opportunity for the Libraries to reach the campus community beyond our library walls.

Toys for Tots and United Way

Our outreach programs also include involvement beyond our campus. Each year, our employees serve on University service committees and in local civic organizations helping to make a difference in our community.

For many years, University Libraries has served as a collection site for the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve's Toys for Tots drive. Faculty and staff collect toys from across campus to be distributed to families in our local area. Our faculty and staff also participate in the local United Way drive. University Libraries, part of the University family, resolves to better our world and all the people in it.

High School Tour

Ninety students from Brookwood High School visited Gorgas Library for a tour of the departments and to learn more about what services and resources a college library provides. University Libraries is just one of many departments on campus using our assets and abilities to create and accelerate success in our community and state.

The primary function of a special collections library is to promote scholarship by providing researchers access to items of enduring historical value while ensuring their longevity.

Our collections document Alabama and the South's cultural and political history, the Civil War and Reconstruction, slavery and its abolition, and the Civil Rights Movement. This past year we also began to increase collections Latin American cultural and political history, particularly of Brazil and Mexico. We bring together diverse and distinctive materials such as books, papers, letters, diaries, works of art, handiwork, artifacts, photographs, music, and memorabilia.

This past year we digitized and described more than 11,000 intellectual items, including audio reels, genealogical records, photographs, letters, diaries, and other materials. Notable items of world history digitized include World War I posters and the Ancient and Medieval Coin Collection. State and local history items digitized include the William Stickney diary of his religious awakening, the Natalie Thornton photograph album of UA co-eds, the earliest ledger of Tuscaloosa's First United Methodist Church, and letters and photographs of longtime Alabama families, including the William H. Ely letters, and the McCorvey and Tutwiler family's papers.

ASSOCIATION OF RESEARCH LIBRARIES CONFERENCE

University Libraries sponsored an Association of Research Libraries (ARL) Conference in February. Invited guests to the two-day conference included deans and representatives from the state of Alabama and regional university libraries, along with University of Alabama Libraries faculty and staff. Speakers included Elliott Shore, executive director, ARL; Elizabeth Waraksa, program director for research and strategic initiatives, ARL; and John Seely Brown, independent co-chairman, Deloitte's Center for the Edge, visiting scholar, and advisor to the provost at University of Southern California.

Striving to be on the forefront of education, innovation, research and discovery, University Libraries plans and manages our resources to anticipate future challenges and opportunities for success. With this in mind, topics at the conference ranged from the evolving role of libraries, the ARL strategic framework, redefining the role of the research library, unprecedented change in libraries, and collaboration between research libraries and ARL.

DIGITORIUM 2017

College professors, librarians, staff, and students from across the U.S. and Europe attended Digitorium, a three-day digital humanities conference, hosted by the Alabama Digital Humanities Center in April. The conference was also supported by the Hudson Strode Program in Renaissance Studies in the Department of English.

The conference featured a robust program of 20 panels of presentations and workshops led by faculty, practitioners, and students from 22 institutions throughout the U.S. and worldwide, including presenters from The University of Alabama, representing over 15 different disciplines, united by their research into and application of digital methods for research and teaching.

The ADHC, located in the University Libraries, is a facility offering transformative tools and opportunities for our faculty and students to achieve potential, create change, and positively influence the world.

EXPERIENCE THE SOLAR ECLIPSE

Students, faculty, and staff were invited to join the Libraries in experiencing the solar eclipse on August 21. We were overwhelmed with the participation and lines at each of our locations; 1200 pairs of glasses were handed out in 15 minutes. Solar themed refreshments including Milky Way bars, Moon Pies, and Starburst candy were available for patrons. Never missing an opportunity to provide information, solar eclipse fact sheets were also provided. The crowd spilled out on the steps of Gorgas Library and the Quad for a perfect view of the first eclipse to go coast to coast across the U.S. since 1918.

Endowments & Gifts

The creation of endowments, major gifts, and individual monetary donations supports the advancement of The University of Alabama Libraries. During this past year, donations and funds from endowments were used to purchase new books and media for our collections, improve library spaces, and assist in staffing.

We would especially like to recognize and thank those who provided major gifts, those who preserve the legacy of The University of Alabama through their establishment of endowments, and those who have contributed at the individual level. Your gifts have afforded us the tools and opportunities to advance the educational mission of the University while supporting our faculty and students to achieve their greatest potential, create change, and positively influence the world.

Collection, Service, and Scholarship Endowments

Annual income from endowments allows the University Libraries to continue providing key resources for students and faculty. Endowments begin at $25,000. Donors may make a single gift or pledge over a number of years.

SCHAUDIES, BANKS, RAGLAND COLLECTION

Dr. Wylheme H. Ragland, Decatur, and his sons Frederick D. Kennedy, Wesley Chapel, Florida, and James L. Nicholas Jr., Decatur, continue to support University Libraries Special Collections with contributions to the Schaudies, Banks, Ragland Collection. The family established the collection in 2014 to document and preserve materials relating to middle-class African American families from Decatur, Morgan County, and north Alabama. Among the many items donated this year were photographs from World War I and II; pamphlets and booklets celebrating school reunions, church anniversaries, and banquets; numerous family records; funeral bulletins, funeral announcements, and obituaries; cookbooks; and yearbooks.

ELISE SANGUINETTI DIGITAL COLLECTION FUND

A graduate of The University of Alabama, Elise Sanguinetti went on to become an accomplished author including four published novels, several unpublished novels, and approximately 100 short stories. During her lifetime, Sanguinetti contributed manuscripts of her published novels, as well as, documents and memorabilia associated with her life and literary works to the University Libraries Special Collections.

Upon the death of his wife in 2014, Phillip A. Sanguinetti established the Elise Sanguinetti Literary Trust to facilitate the continued availability of her works to be accessed by future generations. In 2017 the Sanguinetti Literary Trust established the Elise Sanguinetti Digital Collection Fund benefitting The University of Alabama Libraries to support the digitization of the Elise Sanguinetti Papers and to make available her works through The University of Alabama Libraries website.

The University Libraries development team has made every effort to ensure the accuracy of this report. Please let us know if you see any errors or omissions. Every gift is important to our mission.

More than any other single entity, the libraries touches the entire university; we are the center of our flagship institution.

You can help guarantee that our students and faculty will receive the tools and opportunities needed to achieve their highest potential by making an investment in the University Libraries.
